

January 16, 1986

certainly isn't putting anybody out and suggest you do it that way.

PRESIDENT: The motion is debatable, the DeCamp amendment. Senator Beutler.

SENATOR BEUTLER: Mr. Speaker, members of the Legislature, I don't know when fair is fair, but certainly we're pretty close to the point when fair is fair. We've had two debates this morning on essentially the same question and we can come back and debate rules again. That is certainly a possibility, but John is being very tenacious today and that's his right and privilege, but I think we should all understand that tenacity is also a two-way street and you are now in a position where you're opening the rules up to all kinds of amendments again and this can go on and on and on. And probably given the level of debate, it will go on and on and on. There has been a fair shot taken. I think we need to get on and move on with all the other business that we have this session and we all know that it is overwhelming the way it is. So, I would like to urge you to reject this, to adopt the permanent rules and to move on to other discussions. Again, I remind you, as we work in the summer and the fall on this whole problem, if you don't like it, come January next year, you can walk in here and vote it all away with 25 votes. You can vote it all away. You can have the same vote in January that we're having today after you look at the final form of everything and doesn't that make more sense than going on and on and on today and tomorrow and the next day? Thank you.

PRESIDENT: Senator DeCamp.

SENATOR DECAMP: Mr. President, I have no intention of offering any other amendments this year to the rules. I don't know about anybody else, but tenacious I may be, but delaying I am not and never have been in all the time I've been here. That's one thing. I ask unanimous consent to withdraw the motion and, indeed, I suggest all of you give strong considerations to whether you do in fact want to go ahead with this new plan and do really examine as to whether the real reasons for making all this structure are individual or whether they are really required as a result of work load.

PRESIDENT: Senator DeCamp has withdrawn his amendment and